Quick start for the iPhone app and the web app

1. Start or join

The Scorecard is a shared golf-handicap and scorekeeping app. A group owner creates a group and sends invitation links. A golfer normally joins by opening the invitation addressed to that golfer.

Use the same invitation only for the person named in it. Do not create a second golfer for somebody who already has rounds.

If you are the owner

- Create the group and keep the owner account's email and password safe.
- Add golfers to the roster and send the correct invitation for each person.
- Use owner and administrator controls carefully: they can manage the roster and correct group data.

If you were invited

- Open the invitation link. On an iPhone with the app installed, it opens the app. Otherwise it opens the web app.
- Confirm the group and golfer name before accepting.
- If the app asks you to sign in, use the existing account that belongs to you.

2. Use the iPhone app

Install The Scorecard from TestFlight during testing or from the App Store after release.

- Tap the invitation link. The iPhone opens The Scorecard directly when it is installed.
- If you already use email and password on the web, sign in with exactly the same email and password.
- Choose your group and confirm your golfer name, handicap and recent rounds.

Use the web app

Open willyros01.github.io/scorecard. The web app and iPhone app use the same Firebase account and shared group data.

The Cuberoot invitation address is safe to open on any device. If the iPhone app is not installed, it forwards to the web app with the invitation unchanged.

3. Moving from the web app to the iPhone app

Your existing account and golf data stay in Firebase. You do not export or re-enter them.

You already have an email and password

- Install the iPhone app.
- Sign in with exactly the same email and password used in the web app.
- Confirm the same group, golfer, handicap and recent rounds appear.

You are a guest without a password

- Keep using the web app until your group owner sends the moving or re-invitation link.
- Open that link on the iPhone and follow the prompts once.
- Confirm the existing golfer and rounds appear. Do not make a new golfer.

Before removing the old web home-screen icon, verify the iPhone shows the correct group, golfer, handicap and recent rounds.

4. Enter and correct a round

- Open the correct group and choose the entry screen.
- Select the golfer, course and tee, then enter the adjusted score.
- Post the round. If the device is offline, leave the app installed and reconnect later so the queued round can upload.
- Check History to confirm the round appears once.

Corrections

A golfer can correct their own round during the app's 24-hour window. Group administrators can make later corrections when needed.

Handicap and history

A golfer may play in several groups while keeping one golfer record and one handicap history. The Scorecard keeps the course rating and slope used when a round was entered so later course changes do not silently rewrite history.

5. Groups, invitations and offline use

Invitation states

- Invite — no invitation has been recorded yet.
- Re-send — an invitation was sent, but the golfer has not joined.
- Joined — the golfer is linked to an account.

Offline use

The app can queue a round while the device has no signal and upload it after the connection returns. Keep the app installed and allow it to reconnect. Do not repeatedly post the same round while waiting.

Important

Never delete a group or golfer by editing Firebase by hand. Use the controls provided in The Scorecard so rounds and references are handled in the correct order.

6. Delete your account

- Open Settings.
- Choose Delete my account.
- Read the explanation of what is removed and what remains.
- Confirm the deletion.

A group owner must first transfer ownership or delete the owned group. Deletion normally finishes immediately. If it is interrupted because the app closes, the device is lost or the network fails, an automated completion process finishes within one day.

What remains

Your golfer name, rounds and handicap history remain so the shared golf record stays correct. Your sign-in, memberships, invitation claims and account-to-golfer link are removed. Old records may retain a random, unusable account identifier that no longer leads to an account or profile.
