Quick start for the iPhone app and the web app

1. Start or join

The Scorecard is a shared golf-handicap and scorekeeping app. A group owner creates the group and sends invitation links. A golfer normally joins by opening the invitation addressed to that golfer.

Use the same invitation only for the person named in it. Do not create a second golfer for somebody who already has rounds.

If you are the owner

- Create the group and keep the owner account's email and password safe.
- Add golfers to the roster and send the correct invitation for each person.
- Use owner and administrator controls carefully: they can manage the roster and correct group data.

If you were invited

- Open the invitation link. On an iPhone with the app installed, it opens the app. Otherwise it opens the web app.
- Confirm the group and golfer name before accepting.
- If the app asks you to sign in, use the existing account that belongs to you.

2. Use the iPhone app

Install The Scorecard from TestFlight during testing or from the App Store after release.

- Open an invitation link. If the app is installed, the iPhone opens it directly; otherwise the web app opens.
- When asked, sign in with the same email and Scorecard password you use on the web.
- Choose your group and confirm your golfer name and recent rounds.

Use the web app

Open willyros01.github.io/scorecard/. You may continue using the web app after the iPhone app is available. Both use the same Firebase account and shared group data.

The Cuberoot invitation address is safe to open on any device. If the iPhone app is not installed, it forwards to the web app with the invitation unchanged.

3. Moving from the web app to the iPhone app

Your golfer, rounds and handicap are not on your phone - they are in the group. Moving only means signing in to the same account in the iPhone app. Never create a second golfer.

Before you move - in the web app you normally use

- Be online. Tap the status button at the top right. It must say Synced. If it says Saved on device with rounds waiting, keep the web app open and online until it says Synced. If it never does, do not move - tell the group owner.
- Back up: status button, Back up my data, Save it somewhere, then Save to Files.
- Keep the web app. Do not delete its home-screen icon or clear Safari until the checks at the end pass.

4. Move the correct way for your account

Owner, or admin with a password

- In the iPhone app, tap Sign in on the first screen and use the same email and Scorecard password.

Admin without a password

- First, in the web app, tap the status button and choose Set a password. Then sign in on the iPhone with that email and password.

Guest without a password

- In the web app, tap the status button and choose Set a password. Use an email that has no Scorecard account yet.
- The message must say Password saved. Then sign in on the iPhone with that email.

Re-invitation path

- If the message said Signed in to your existing account, or you do not want a password, ask the group owner to tap Let them join again on your name and send a new invitation from the iPhone app. Open it on your iPhone.

5. Check the move before removing the web app

- The group name and roster appear.
- History shows the same rounds as the web app.
- Your handicap matches the web app.
- For password accounts, the status button shows the same email.

Only after all checks pass is the web app optional. Owners and administrators may keep using both because both use the same account.

Enter and correct a round

- Open the group and choose the entry screen.
- Select the golfer, course and tee; enter the adjusted score.
- Post the round. If offline, leave the app installed and reconnect later so the queued round can upload.
- A golfer can correct their own round during the 24-hour window. Group administrators can make later corrections.

6. Handicap, groups and offline use

The Scorecard calculates handicap from stored rounds using the World Handicap System method used by the app. A golfer may play in several groups while keeping one golfer record and one handicap history.

Invitation states

- Invite - no invitation has been recorded yet.
- Re-send - an invitation was sent, but the golfer has not joined.
- Joined - the golfer is linked to an account.

Offline use

The app can queue a round without a connection and upload it after the connection returns. Keep the app installed and allow it to reconnect. Do not repeatedly post the same round while waiting.

Never delete a group or golfer by editing Firebase by hand. Use The Scorecard controls so rounds and references are handled in the correct order.

7. Delete your account

- At the bottom of any screen, tap Delete my account.
- Read the explanation of what is removed and what remains.
- Confirm the deletion.

A group owner must first delete every group they own. Group ownership cannot be transferred.

Deletion normally finishes immediately. If the app closes, the device is lost or the network fails during deletion, an automated completion process finishes it within one day.

What remains

Your golfer name, rounds and handicap history remain so the shared golf record stays correct. Your sign-in, memberships, invitation claims and account-to-golfer link are removed. Old records may retain a random, unusable account identifier that no longer leads to an account or personal profile.
